These days getting hired is really challenging. It is more than just passing a resume, applying and forever hoping to get hired. Well it is time to stop hoping and start really getting hired. Here are the steps on how to get pass job searching and start working.

Self Analysis To start job searching you must first analyze yourself on what you want to be. You could be a Bum, an Entrepreneur, a Young Professional, or a Student Seeking Higher Studies. If you choose to be a Bum, Entrepreneur or a Student then you should stop reading this write-up and continue to pursue the career path that you chose. Nevertheless, if you choose to become a Young Professional continue reading because all the info you have to get hired is in this write-up.

Preparing Why do we need to prepare before job searching? Because Companies/Employers are really selective and among the several quantity of applicants they have they will choose the most deserving and who will make their company more productive. They are not looking to teach you, they are looking to get instant results from you. The other cause is competition, if you had an experience in working you might have a distinct advantage but nonetheless it is still the Companies/Employers that will have the choice when hiring an applicant.

Looking For a Company Where do we look for a company that are hiring? A lot of companies post their job vacancy in, for instance, newspaper ads, radio, TV, job fair, employment agencies, Internet, and if your University has College Placement Office they can supply you a job vacancy listing also. Another way of looking for a company is through Networking, when looking for a company you must always be resourceful; ask the people you know that is working for a company if they have an opening. When you find a company then you must prepare for the next step.

Resume Books, magazines and the internet

are the example of the resources you can get on how to make a presentable resume but the only point is be true to on what you will write. Dont put on your resume what you dont know. Cover Letter Just like in making a resume there are a lot of resources in how to make a cover letter. Before you make a letter make sure that you know where to send the cover letter that you will make. It should be either on the Human Resource Supervisor or the Employer. Interview If the Company/Employer called your for an interview, you must also prepare for it. Again, why do we need to prepare? As I have written earlier companies are really selective. So what do we need to prepare? Check Company Why do we need to check the company? If you where ask by the interviewer what do you know about the company? What do you think your answer will be? It is much better if you know the history of the company as well as the product or services that they offer to their clients. You dont accurately need to know all the info of the company, just a bit of knowledge about them is well enough. What is the Job About? You dont apply for a job not knowing what the job is all about. It is foolishness in your part to apply for it. Before applying for the job position make sure you qualify for the requirements the company is asking for. Throughout the interview, the interviewer might it be the Human Resource Supervisor or the Employer wont just look at your credentials in your resume but also your personality as well. You must show the interviewer maturity, right attitude, and presentable appearance. It is essential to make yourself presentable because you are offering your services to them and if they see you not well dressed they might think that you take their company for granted. If you comply with what the company needs and they believe that you will be an asset to them in terms of productivity of their company. Automatically you will get hired and the really next day you can see yourself working in the company.
